Recovery Of 23 Bodies In Mine Shatters Hope For Safety Of 68 Men

BY LEO DISHER
BARTLEY, W. Va., Jan. 12. — Recovery of 23 bodies from the blast-torn Bartley No. 1 mine shattered hope today for the safety of 68 other miners trapped behind twisted timbers and other debris by Wednesday's explosion.

The last 19 bodies — all badly mangled — were found as rescue crews stumbled through the wrecked tunnels 600 feet underground to the center of the explosion area.

Rescue workers reported the men probably had been killed instantly and saw little chance that miners in other entrways had escaped a similar fate. Mine company officials and mine inspectors shared that belief.

Holds Little Hope
"I am afraid that finding of the bodies means the other men in the mine also will be found dead," said G. J. Stollings, general manager of Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corp., which operates the workings.

RAVENNA CRASH KILLS YOUTH, 21

Harold Walter, Nephew of Salem Woman, Victim; 3 Others Hurt

Harold Rea Walker, 21, of Atwater, nephew of Mrs. Harry Coburn of Salem, was killed instantly when the automobile in which he was riding was involved in a head-on collision with a car driven by Lindsey R. Christie, 62, of Pittsburgh, on Route 14, one mile south of Ravenna, at 5:30 p. m. Thursday.

Walker was a passenger in a car driven by Raymond Strong, 29, of Atwater, who is in a serious condition in Ravenna Memorial hospital, suffering from a brain concussion and severe lacerations of the face and body.

Christie and a passenger in his car, Mrs. Marie Horning, 47, of Pittsburgh, also were injured. Walker and Strong were returning to their homes in Atwater from work in Ravenna when their car was struck.

State highway patrolmen of the Kent barracks, who investigated the accident, reported that Christie was attempting to pass a truck driven by George L. Kent of Cleveland, when he collided head-on with the car carrying the two young men. Manslaughter charges were filed against Christie by the patrol.

Walker is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Walker, two sisters and one brother, all of Atwater.

$900 WPA Payroll Fraud Seen Solved

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 12.—Treasury department agents and Youngstown detectives expressed belief today that they had solved a $900 WPA payroll check fraud with the detention of Frank Danko, 37, a former WPA timekeeper.

Danko pleaded guilty before U. S. Commissioner Ross H. Diser to forging a name on a $27.60 check, and police charge he forged signatures on 28 other checks between July, 1938, and May, 1939.

Danko obtained the checks, Detective Harold Albaugh said, by falsifying records he kept while a time-keeper. When a WPA worker quit, Danko would send in another address, keeping the man on the WPA payroll, and obtaining his checks.

Bricker Backs Up Clifton; Refuses Extradition O. K.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Jan. 12.—Gov. John W. Bricker refused today to authorize the extradition to Oklahoma of Carlton B. Clifton, 44-year-old Cleveland, who "made good" after escaping from an Oklahoma reformatory in 1913.

Governor Bricker said in a three-page letter that his decision was based on Clifton's "good conduct" record.

"It is my honest conviction that Mr. Clifton by his own conduct during the past quarter century has clearly shown his own rehabilitation and a positive disposition to live as a peaceful, industrious and law-abiding citizen," Bricker wrote.

"If the failure of the state of Ohio to return Mr. Clifton to the state of Oklahoma would mean the destruction of the trust system of the state of Oklahoma, then, as in such event, his return might be justified on the basis of a greater good."

Cites Good Behavior
"It seems to me, however, that recognition on the part of the states involved of the exemplary manner in which Mr. Clifton has lived since the time of his escape would do more to improve the spirit and morale of the inmates of our penal institutions than any adherence to legalistic technicalities. In this equation, his wife and step-child, who are wholly dependent on him for support, must likewise be considered."

HARRY LUTZ, 51, IS VICTIM IN MISHAP TODAY

Believed Hit by Pennsylvania Train While Walking Tracks

CORONER CONTINUES PROBE OF TRAGEDY

Body Is Sighted by Engineer From Cab of New York Flyer

Believed to have been struck by an east-bound train, the body of Harry Lutz, 51, of 415 South Broadway, was found lying along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, near the Standard Oil bulk station, early today.

Lutz, a molder at the National Sanitary Co. plant, was apparently killed instantly. His head was crushed and his body badly mangled.

Coroner Arnold C. Devon withheld a verdict, pending further investigation of Lutz' movements between 5 a. m., when he was last seen at the National Sanitary plant, and 7 a. m. when he was due to report for work.

Engineer Sees Body

The engineer of the east-bound Chicago to New York train, No. 62, saw Lutz' body at 7:40 a. m. and dropped a note from his train as it reached the Leetonia railroad station. Salem station officials were immediately notified and an ambulance was called.

Police were called at 9 a. m. after the body had been taken to the Leetonia station by the ambulance crew on authorization by Coroner Devon. Chief Ralph Stoffer and Patrolman Nerr Gaunt investigated.

Dressed in a blue suit and blue shirt, Lutz' body was found on the middle tracks. Used by slow freights and for a siding. He was identified by a driver's license in his pocketbook.

Police expressed a belief that Lutz was on his way to work when struck by the train at either the South Elsworth or South Broadway crossing and that his body was carried down the tracks for several hundred yards.

Atmosphere Hazy
Two trains pass through Salem between 6:30 and 7 a. m., the time when Lutz was due at work. One is an east-bound train at 6:30 a. m. and the other is the west-bound Cleveland flyer at 6:50 a. m. Railroad officials are checking both trains to find possible evidence of the accident.

A foggy and smoky condition of the air early this morning may have prevented Lutz from seeing a train approach if he walked the tracks.

A former resident of Zellenople, Pa., Lutz had been employed by the National Sanitary Co. for three years. He was recently married to Mrs. Lutz Englehart of Salem.

Surviving are his widow and five children by a previous marriage, including one son, Lewis Lutz of Salem.

Funeral arrangements are not known.

Mahoning Jurist Plans Talk Before Leetonia Group Monday

LEETONIA, Jan. 12. — Judge George Gessner of Youngstown will deliver an address before the Parent-Teachers' association of Leetonia school district in the high school auditorium here at 8 p. m. Monday.

Matters to come before the association include reports of committees which have been working on projects, appointment of new committees to serve until September, and the disposition of accumulated funds in the treasury.

Major projects for community benefit in the past few years have resulted in the purchase of several thousands of dollars worth of equipment, such as stage furnishings for the new auditorium and high school band uniforms.

More recently the association has been purchasing library supplies, and needed in the three schools of the district. Further assistance of this nature is expected in the immediate future.

Britons Fear Nazi Aerial Visits Foreshadow Raids

(By Associated Press)

German fliers roared high in the skies over the east coast of Britain today in continued scouting expeditions which Britons feared foreshadowed destructive raids.

It was the second successive day of extended Nazi reconnaissance flights which the British matched last night with observation trips over western and northwestern Germany and seaplane bases in Helgoland Bight.

There were conflicting announcements of what the rival fliers were able to accomplish yesterday.

The German high command said its aerial scouts sank British patrol boats and an armed merchantman and downed a British plane off Scotland.

Steamer Is Sunk
British disclosed the British steamer Keynes, 1,706 tons, went down in the North sea after five bombs struck her, but did not list any other sinkings as a result of German aerial attacks.

Members of the crew said the ship was attacked twice by Nazi planes. Only one crewman, the radio operator, was injured.

Mines and collisions, however, added new victims to the war's losses—including the first sinking in the Irish sea.

For their own flights over Germany, the British said the missions were "successful." The Germans merely said two British planes attacked a German island air base "without causing damage."

The British air ministry, meanwhile, disclosed it had in production a new, long-range super-fighter of "very high speed."

After their serious reverses on the eastern front, the Russians invading Finland were reported aiming to drive anew southward from above the Arctic circle where they had been pushed back earlier in the war.

Cold Retards Russians
The Finns, however, looked to the bitter cold of the far north to keep any Russian threat from developing into a decisive encounter before spring.

Advices reaching Copenhagen said that Finnish sharpshooters behind the Mannerheim line had picked off Russians attempting to land behind the front by parachute. Danish volunteers arrived in Finland to fight by the side of the Finns.

In the far east, Premier General Nobuyuki Abe of Japan announced his intention of resigning Sunday. His cabinet was expected to quit en bloc.

Recovery Of 23 Bodies
In Mine Shatters Hope
For Safety Of 68 Men

BY LEO DISHER
BARTLEY, W. Va., Jan. 12. — Recovery of 23 bodies from the blast-torn Bartley No. 1 mine shattered hope today for the safety of 68 other miners trapped behind twisted timbers and other debris by Wednesday's explosion.

The last 19 bodies — all badly mangled — were found as rescue crews stumbled through the wrecked tunnels 600 feet underground to the center of the explosion area.

Rescue workers reported the men probably had been killed instantly and saw little chance that miners in other entrances had escaped a similar fate. Mine company officials and mine inspectors shared that belief.

Holds Little Hope
"I am afraid that finding of the bodies means the other men in the mine also will be found dead," said G. J. Stollings, general manager of Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corp. which operates the workings.

It took approximately 38 hours to tunnel through tons of slate, rock and coal to where the 91 men were caught 600 feet underground by a blast mine inspectors said might have resulted when the miners cut into some abandoned gas-filled entry. Forty-seven diggers in the eastern section of the mine escaped.

Four bodies were recovered before rescuers reached the explosion zone. The explosion occurred less than an hour before the day shift was scheduled to go off duty.

Company officials estimated it would be early afternoon before other trapped men could be reached. Crews had to build barriers to allow laborers to work without oxygen helmets. In some places there was hardly enough room for one man to crawl between the roof and piled debris.

Relatives Form Watch
Above ground scores of miners and relatives of entombed men huddled together in a cold drizzle, watching gloomily. Many had clung to hope as the hours passed, while veteran miners who have witnessed such disasters feared the worst.

Lights burned throughout the night in homes of this isolated community of 2,500 in the heart of the rich southern West Virginia coal fields. In those homes were 154 children of the trapped men, many of them still wondering why "daddy" hadn't come home from work.

State Mine Inspector E. L. Chatfield, after talking with the rescue crews, said, "The evidence of the violence indicates that every man in the mine is doomed."

He reported one of the crews found a two-ton loading machine blown 60 feet from the face of the coal. The track on which it ran was twisted and warped.

"The men apparently had no chance to get away," he added, dashing further the hopes that some of the group might have been able to barricade themselves in an isolated section.

"After gasses, which is left after all oxygen is burned out in an explosion, would have killed many of the men instantly," Chatfield declared, if they were unable to shut themselves off.

The letter was addressed to Gov. Leon Phillips of Oklahoma, who re-instituted extradition proceedings after refusing a pardon plea for Chilton. Governor Bricker's clemency secretary, Harry Miller, heard Chilton's arguments for custody of Chilton at a hearing yesterday.

Chilton's return to Oklahoma was refused in 1936 by former Gov. Martin L. Davey, who gave Chilton a job in the state highway department.

Owen J. Watts, assistant Oklahoma attorney general, contending at the extradition hearing that "the fundamental institutions of this government are on trial," said later the state would keep trying to "get its man."

HARRY LUTZ, 51, IS VICTIM IN MISHAP TODAY

Believed Hit by Pennsylvania Train While Walking Tracks

CORONER CONTINUES
PROBE OF TRAGEDY

Body Is Sighted by Engineer From Cab of New York Flyer

Believed to have been struck by an east-bound train, the body of Harry Lutz, 51, of 415 South Broadway, was found lying along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, near the Standard Oil bulk station, early today.

Lutz, a molder at the National Sanitary Co. plant, was apparently killed instantly. His head was crushed and his body badly mangled.

Coroner Arnold C. Devon withheld a verdict, pending further investigation of Lutz' movements between 5 a. m. when he was last seen at the National Sanitary plant, and 7 a. m. when he was due to report for work.

Engineer Sees Body
The engineer of the east-bound Chicago to New York train, No. 62, saw Lutz' body at 7:40 a. m. and dropped a note from his train as it reached the Leetonia railroad station. Salem station officials were immediately notified and an ambulance was called.

Police were called at 9 a. m. after the body had been taken to the Pennsylvania station by the ambulance crew on authorization by Coroner Devon. Chief Ralph Stoffer and Patrolman Nerr Gault investigated.

Dressed in a blue suit and blue shirt, Lutz' body was found on the middle tracks, used by slow freight and for a siding. He was identified by a driver's license in his pocketbook.

Police expressed a belief that Lutz was on his way to work when struck by the train at either the South Ellsworth or South Broadway crossing and that his body was carried down the tracks for several hundred yards.

Two trains pass through Salem between 6:30 and 7 a. m., the time when Lutz was due at work. One is an east-bound train at 6:30 a. m. and the other is the west-bound Cleveland flyer at 6:50 a. m. Railroad officials are checking both trains to find possible evidence of the accident.

A foggy and smoky condition of the air early this morning may have prevented Lutz from seeing a train approach if he walked the tracks.

A former resident of Zelenople, Pa., Lutz had been employed by the National Sanitary Co. for three years. He was recently married to Mrs. Lillie Englehart of Salem.

Surviving are his widow and five children by a previous marriage, including one son, Lewis Lutz of Salem.

Funeral arrangements are not known.

$264,611,252 Defense
Measure Approved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The house passed by an overwhelming vote today a $264,611,252 emergency defense appropriation for use of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Increased sentiment for diverting the administration's $460,000,000 special defense budget to restoring budget cuts in farm benefits was noted as Congress bogged down to its customary early-session pace after a spirited start.

Faces Pen Stretch

MARIETTA, Jan. 12.—Francis R. Walsh, 27-year-old Weirton, W. Va., steel worker, pleaded guilty today to participation in the $1,890 robbery of a Lower Salem bank last July 29 and was sentenced to 20 years in Ohio penitentiary by Judge D. H. Thomas.

FOR THE SAKE OF ARGUMENT

The height of folly—or something—is reached in President Roosevelt's insistence in his argument with Sen. Taft that the budget can't be balanced.

If the President's right, the United States is through. It will have to be put through the wringer, sold at auction, wiped out and a fresh start made. Is that what Mr. Roosevelt means?

Of course not. In an argument with a spokesman for the opposing party he has talked himself into an untenable position. For the sake of making a point at Sen. Taft's expense he has said something he can't believe.

The budget can be balanced. It will be the hardest thing any administration ever tried to do and might be political suicide, but it can be done.

Again, it's recalled that in telling how to arrive at a balanced budget Sen. Taft said that first of all the party power must want to balance it. Without the will to reduce expenditures, certainly it can't be done, no more than a boozefighter can stop drinking without will power.

What President Roosevelt means is that the budget can't be balanced as far as he's concerned. The nation's financial integrity is at stake in his argument with Sen. Taft. Mr. Roosevelt should choose his words carefully.

GRIM DAYS

Apparently another shift of war emphasis is occurring. Renewal of raiding in the North sea area, accompanied by Prime Minister Chamberlain's warning to his countrymen of grim days ahead, warns American followers of the conflict to be prepared for a sudden shock. The conflict in Finland soon may be of only secondary interest.

Perhaps it is futile to speculate on what form the shock may take. There is, however, one probability that had best be discounted in advance. If Germany finally does strike at Britain with full fury from the air, the fury probably will not be one-sided.

British air raids against key points of Germany's coast defense have been reported by the war offices of both sides. The British air force, furthermore, has been reorganized and unified as one result of the Hore-Belisha cluster, which German authorities interpreted as an indication of a more aggressive British policy in the future.

If Germany's masters now believe it is time for that all-out war of fury they have threatened to loose, they must reflect that the opposition now is capable of inflicting heavy damage too. The long awaited answer to the question of what the intended victim of "blitzkrieg" will do when warned in advance may be furnished in the near future. Great Britain won't be another Poland.

QUIBBLES WITHOUT END

Decision by United States circuit court of appeals in the Chicago district that the labor relations act doesn't require written collective bargaining contracts festoons this controversial law with one more quibble.

While the court's reasoning is plain enough—that a written agreement is not presupposed in the text of the law as the objective of every exercise of collective bargaining but is one of the things to be handled by collective bargaining—it's also plain that written agreements are needed to make contracts of this nature effectual and binding.

Commission of specific provision for written agreements in the act is a fault that employees and employers both can detect, because each has something to lose under certain circumstances from lack of such an agreement. It is not a particular but a general weakness, in other words, one of the deficiencies of the labor relations law that must be corrected before the statute can be said to reflect the kind of policy the public is willing to uphold in the field of labor relations.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, January 13

ACCORDING to the lunar transits, this should be a rather lively and successful day, with much stirring in the direction of launching new programs of a fairly ambitious order. These should succeed by sharp initiative and aggressive measures, in which an element of novelty, innovation or experiment has a determining force, particularly in attracting financial backing or friendly support of influential personages.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which there is good promise of launching new propositions of importance, with the co-operation or financial support of those in prestige and power. Novel things, inaugurated with ingenuity, boldness, aggressiveness and practical initiative, should flourish.

A child born on this day may have much talent and initiative, with executive and organizing ability, as well as creative powers and ingenuity. It may attain legal or literary reputation of a high order.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Signor Mussolini's sudden spurt of progress with his scheme for forming Hungary and the Balkans into a defensive bloc against Russia—and in effect against Germany—has swung the attention of Europe to this highly strategic peninsula and to the Fascist chieftain, who has been pursuing an enigmatic neutrality since the outbreak of war.

Il Duce's reported success in making a defensive alliance with Hungary, thereby throwing a barrier across an important highway to the peninsula, indicates that he finally is getting ahead with a program which long has engaged his efforts. Up to this juncture the Balkans have regarded the Fascist chieftain with considerable suspicion, fearing ulterior motives, but they now seem to be veering round in his direction.

Should Mussolini attain his goal it would provide a major sensation. It would mean that the united Balkans, which saw the whelping of the World war, might control sufficient resources to be able to swing the balance in this new conflict.

Germany has been banking mightily on continued domination of the resources of the Balkans to help defeat the naval blockade and win the war. The formation of a bloc would deprive the nation of domination, and most likely accelerate the flow of supplies which recently have been going forward to the Anglo-French allies instead of Germany.

Thus Mussolini's present operations, whether they are calculated to or not, do in fact work against the interest of his axis partner and to the advantage of the allies. This situation isn't surprising for many observers long have felt that Il Duce was cooling rapidly toward the Berlin-Rome axis.

Mussolini's chief problems are two—he must win the confidence of suspicious statesmen, and he must settle several nasty quarrels among countries which have been tossing the apple of discord about like a hand-ball. One of these disputes involves Hungary's demand that Roumania return the great territory of Transylvania which the Roumanians got at the end of the World War. Il Duce already has persuaded the two nations to negotiate.

Another hard nut to crack will be the Bulgarian claims for the return of territories from Roumania, Yugoslavia and Greece.

Mussolini is busy with diplomatic overtures to Sofia. The entente is meeting in Belgrade on Feb. 2 and an effort is being made to persuade Bulgaria to be represented. There apparently is hope that, despite the fact Bulgaria has been friendly towards Russia of late, compromises may be reached which will permit of Balkan unity.

The fact that King Boris of Bulgaria is a son-in-law of the king of Italy should be of valuable assistance to Mussolini in getting the Bulgarian government to listen to him.

The Adolescent's Glands Discussed By Clendenning

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE endocrine glands, which consist of the thyroid gland in the neck, the pituitary gland in the head, the adrenals, the pancreatic cells of internal secretion, and the reproductive glands, are, with the exception of the pancreatic glands, rather small in infancy and early childhood.

At the period of adolescence, when rapid growth begins, they also take on an accelerated development. The thyroid gland increases nearly three times in weight between the ages of 10 and 15. So probably does the pituitary gland. The reproductive glands of course, show the most striking evidence of activity; in fact, this activity conditions the entire life and mental outlook of the adolescent. But the thymus gland, which is in the chest, at this time practically disappears.

Concerned With Growth
All these changes are concerned with growth. The pituitary, thyroid and reproductive glands especially have an influence over growth in height. The pituitary and reproductive glands are entirely concerned with the development of maturity.

It is axiomatic in physiology that when unusual and active growth occurs, it does not always stay under control. The activity of the endocrine glands in adolescence, therefore, may be exaggerated and in rare instances their activity may be reduced.

In the case of the thyroid gland, overgrowth or overactivity can easily be seen as an enlargement at the base of the neck. Certain communities are called "goiter communities", and in these regions this "enlargement" may be seen in a very large proportion of the population. Preventive measures in these communities have been adopted for some time.

Problem Created

All of these disturbances and changes create a psychological problem of which every parent and school teacher is aware. I do not intend to go into the psychology of the adolescent here. It is too large a subject and I am not sure that I have any wisdom on the subject. To take care of an adolescent boy or girl who is in trouble is a life-sized problem.

Remember, however, you parents and teachers who deal with these children, that certain parts of their personality may entirely lag behind other phases of their development.

I have before me the specific record of a boy whose chronological age is between 13 and 14; his anatomical age is between 15 and 16; his physiological age is between 13 and 14; his mental age is between 16 and 17; his emotional age is between 7 and 8 and his social age is between 10 and 11. With such immaturity, it is easy to see that we are up against a real problem.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
J. B. H.: "Would you tell me the elements in coffee which are reputedly harmful, why they are so and what their effects may be on the person using it? Would coffee contribute to high blood pressure, heart or arterial troubles, or be the cause of it, or nervousness or tension, this in a person (woman) around sixty or so?"

Answer—The primary physiological effect of coffee is to increase the heart beat and increase the flow of blood through solid organs such as the kidneys, brain and heart muscles. It is this effect on the brain which causes sleeplessness. It is this effect on the kidneys which causes increased urination following the use of coffee. Its effect on the heart muscle is good in people over middle age. If not used in excess, it does no harm.

The association treasury contains $40, which several desired to spend in securing sweaters and letters for the football players. This suggestion was voted down and sweaters will be procured with the proceeds of the show.

The Standard Oil Co., is seeking to get into the newly developed oil and gas territory in Goshen township near Patmos. THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, January 13

ACCORDING to the lunar transits, this should be a rather lively and successful day, with much stirring in the direction of launching new programs of a fairly ambitious order. These should succeed by sharp initiative and aggressive measures, in which an element of novelty, innovation or experiment has a determining force, particularly in attracting financial backing or friendly support of influential personages.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which there is good promise of launching new propositions of importance, with the co-operation or financial support of those in prestige and power. Novel things, inaugurated with ingenuity, boldness, aggressiveness and practical initiative, should flourish.

A child born on this day may have much talent and initiative, with executive and organizing ability, as well as creative powers and ingenuity. It may attain legal or literary reputation of a high order.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Signor Mussolini's sudden spurt of progress with his scheme for forming Hungary and the Balkans into a defensive bloc against Russia—and in effect against Germany—has swung the attention of Europe to this highly strategic peninsula and to the Fascist chieftain, who has been pursuing an enigmatic neutrality since the outbreak of war.

Il Duce's reported success in making a defensive alliance with Hungary, thereby throwing a barrier across an important highway to the peninsula, indicates that he finally is getting ahead with a program which long has engaged his efforts. Up to this juncture the Balkans have regarded the Fascist chieftain with considerable suspicion, fearing ulterior motives, but they now seem to be veering round in his direction.

Should Mussolini attain his goal it would provide a major sensation. It would mean that the united Balkans, which saw the whelping of the World war, might control sufficient resources to be able to swing the balance in this new conflict.

Germany has been banking mightily on continued domination of the resources of the Balkans to help defeat the naval blockade and win the war. The formation of a bloc would deprive the nation of domination, and most likely accelerate the flow of supplies which recently have been going forward to the Anglo-French allies instead of Germany.

Thus Mussolini's present operations, whether they are calculated to or not, do in fact work against the interest of his axis partner and to the advantage of the allies. This situation isn't surprising for many observers long have felt that Il Duce was cooling rapidly toward the Berlin-Rome axis.

Mussolini's chief problems are two—he must win the confidence of suspicious statesmen, and he must settle several nasty quarrels among countries which have been tossing the apple of discord about like a hand-ball. One of these disputes involves Hungary's demand that Roumania return the great territory of Transylvania which the Roumanians got at the end of the World war. Il Duce already has persuaded the two nations to negotiate.

Another hard nut to crack will be the Bulgarian claims for the return of territories from Roumania, Yugoslavia and Greece.

Mussolini is busy with diplomatic overtures to Sofia. The entente is meeting in Belgrade on Feb. 2 and an effort is being made to persuade Bulgaria to be represented. There apparently is hope that, despite the fact Bulgaria has been friendly towards Russia of late, compromises may be reached which will permit of Balkan unity.

The fact that King Boris of Bulgaria is a son-in-law of the king of Italy should be of valuable assistance to Mussolini in getting the Bulgarian government to listen to him.

The Adolescent's Glands Discussed By Clendenning

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE endocrine glands, which consist of the thyroid gland in the neck, the pituitary gland in the head, the adrenals, the pancreatic cells of internal secretion, and the reproductive glands, are, with the exception of the pancreatic glands, rather small in infancy and early childhood.

At the period of adolescence, when rapid growth begins, they also take on an accelerated development. The thyroid gland increases nearly three times in weight between the ages of 10 and 15. So probably does the pituitary.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

gland. The reproductive glands of course, show the most striking evidence of activity; in fact, this activity conditions the entire life and mental outlook of the adolescent. But the thymus gland, which is in the chest, at this time practically disappears.

Concerned With Growth
All these changes are concerned with growth. The pituitary, thyroid and reproductive glands especially have an influence over growth in height. The pituitary and reproductive glands are entirely concerned with the development of maturity.

It is axiomatic in physiology that when unusual and active growth occurs, it does not always stay under control. The activity of the endocrine glands in adolescence, therefore, may be exaggerated and in rare instances their activity may be reduced.

In the case of the thyroid gland, overgrowth or overactivity can easily be seen as an enlargement at the base of the neck. Certain communities are called "goiter communities", and in these regions this adolescent enlargement may be seen in a very large proportion of the population. Preventive measures in these communities have been adopted for some time.

Problem Created

All of these disturbances and changes create a psychological problem of which every parent and school teacher is aware. I do not intend to go into the psychology of the adolescent here. It is too large a subject and I am not sure that I have any wisdom on the subject. To take care of an adolescent boy or girl who is in trouble is a life-sized problem.

Remember, however, you parents and teachers who deal with these children, that certain parts of their personality may entirely lag behind other phases of their development. I have before me the specific record of a boy whose chronological age is between 13 and 14; his anatomical age is between 15 and 16; his physiological age is between 13 and 14; his mental age is between 16 and 17; his emotional age is between 10 and 11. With such immaturity, it is easy to see that we are up against a real problem.

J. B. H.: "Would you tell me the elements in coffee which are reputedly harmful, why they are so and what their effects may be on the person using it? Would coffee contribute to high blood pressure, heart or arterial troubles, or be the cause of it, or nervousness or tension, this in a person (woman) around sixty or so?"

Answer—The primary physiological effect of coffee is to increase the heart beat and increase the flow of blood through solid organs such as the kidneys, brain and heart muscles. It is this effect on the brain which causes sleeplessness. It is this effect on the kidneys which causes increased urination following the use of coffee. Its effect on the heart muscle is good in people over middle age. If not used in excess, it does no harm.

FARM PROGRAM VALUES LISTED

Importance Is Stressed At Institute In Lisbon

LISBON, Jan. 12 — America's AAA farm program is flexible enough to govern agriculture even if the European war influences crop prices. Columbiana county farmers were told at the AAA institute held in the Lincoln theater here.

Both Theodore Rupert of Allen county, field agent of the Ohio AAA committee, and Dwight Wise, state crop insurance supervisor, made this assertion in talks to 200 men.

After tracing the history of American agriculture, Rupert declared the AAA, with its conservation payments, crop insurance and Federal Surplus Commodities Corp. arrangement "is a program that is working".

"One of the ways to help solve unemployment is to get the farmer a price that will give him a profit. Agriculture represents the largest potential buyer in the country," he added.

Wise pointed out that before the World war, farmers composing one fourth of the nation's population, received about 25 per cent of the national income.

"Since the war, however, the farmer has been getting only seven to 11 per cent of the national income, far less than the fellow in industry."

In other talks, Wise discussed crop insurance and loans and emphasized the necessity for farmers' cooperation if the AAA program is to continue.

Rupert also outlined the 1940 conservation program.

The institute was sponsored by the Columbiana County Agricultural Conservation League, with its president, J. Glen Bates of Salem, presiding as chairman.

Discussions were led by Bates, R. W. Armstrong of Elkrun township, G. H. Rogers of Salem and C. J. Freeman of Center township.

Musical numbers were furnished by the Lisbon high school band, the Wayne township glee orchestra and Leonard Armstrong of Elkrun township, an accordionist.

BUILD MODERN ROAD SYSTEM

Expensive "Cloverleaf" In Cleveland Is Traffic Aid

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—Stretching like a gigantic flat-legged spider across more than four acres, the state highway department's largest single project, a $1,700,000 "cloverleaf," is nearing completion a few miles south of Cleveland.

The elaborate system of ramps, bridges and grade crossing eliminations was designed to facilitate a safe, speedy flow of traffic on two of the state's most heavily traveled highways—U. S. 21 between Cleveland and Akron, and State Route 17.

Contemplated as a companion piece to the unit is a proposed six-mile "freeway" with six 12-ft traffic lanes on each side of a divided highway leading directly into downtown Cleveland.

Highway department engineers estimate that completion of the cloverleaf and freeway will create a traffic flow greater than that handled by the famous Holland tunnel linking New York City and Jersey City, N. J., beneath the Hudson river.

One of the district engineering problems involved in construction of the cloverleaf was relocating part of the Cuyahoga river, which formerly ran through the center of the site.

Five spans, each more than 100 feet long, comprise the largest bridge structure, which provides an overpass above the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks, the Cuyahoga river, the old Ohio canal and the paralleling Canal road.

The entire project embraces parts of four villages—Cuyahoga Heights, Valley View, Independence, and Garfield Heights.

Statistically, the project includes 83,160 square yards of brick and concrete pavement; 1,300,000 cubic yards of excavation and embankment; 12,000 tons of structural steel; 550 tons of reinforcing steel; 69,000 feet of piling and 11,000 cubic yards of concrete structures.

Three Firms Working

Portions of the contract were awarded to three construction firms at the letting July 22, 1938. Highway department engineers estimate that the actual construction cost will be $150,000 less than the original $1,700,000 estimate.

Theodore J. Kauer, young highway department engineer, is in charge of state supervision on the project. A native of Sandusky, Kauer was graduated from Ohio State university; served as assistant engineer of division 12 from 1932 to 1935, federal projects engineer for the state highway department 1935-38, and for two months in 1938 was division engineer of division 12.

FARM PROGRAM VALUES LISTED

Importance Is Stressed
At Institute In Lisbon

LISBON, Jan. 12 — America's AAA farm program is flexible enough to govern agriculture even if the European war influences crop prices, Columbiana county farmers were told at the AAA institute held in the Lincoln theater here.

Both Theodore Rupert of Allen county field agent of the Ohio AAA committee, and Dwight Wise, state crop insurance supervisor, made this assertion in talks to 200 men.

After tracing the history of American agriculture, Rupert declared the AAA, with its conservation payments, crop insurance and Federal Surplus Commodities Corp. arrangement "is a program that is working".

"One of the ways to help solve unemployment is to get the farmer a price that will give him a profit. Agriculture represents the largest potential buyer in the country", he added.

Says Income Is Less

Wise pointed out that before the World war, farmers composing one fourth of the nation's population, received about 25 per cent of the national income.

"Since the war, however, the farmer has been getting only seven to 11 per cent of the national income, far less than the fellow in industry."

In other talks, Wise discussed crop insurance and loans and emphasized the necessity for farmers cooperation if the AAA program is to continue.

Rupert also outlined the 1940 conservation program.

The institute was sponsored by the Columbiana County Agricultural Conservation league, with its president, J. Glen Bates of Salem, presiding as chairman.

Discussions were led by Bates, R. W. Armstrong of Elkrun township, G. H. Rogers of Salem and C. J. Freeman of Center township.

Music was furnished by the Lisbon High school band, the Wayne township grange orchestra and Leonard Arrowsmith of Elkrun township, an accordionist.

BUILD MODERN ROAD SYSTEM

Expensive "Cloverleaf" In Cleveland Is Traffic Aid

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—Stretching like a gigantic flat-legged spider across more than four acres, the state highway department's largest single project, a $1,700,000 "cloverleaf", is nearing completion a few miles south of Cleveland.

The elaborate system of ramps, bridges and grade crossing eliminations was designed to facilitate a safe, speedy flow of traffic on two of the state's most heavily traveled highways—U. S. 21 between Cleveland and Akron, and state Route 17.

Contemplated as a companion piece to the unit is a proposed six-mile "freeway" with six 12-foot traffic lanes on each side of a divided highway leading directly into downtown Cleveland.

Help Traffic Flow

Highway department engineers estimate that completion of the cloverleaf and freeway will create a traffic flow greater than that handled by the famous Holland tunnel linking New York City and Jersey City, N. J., beneath the Hudson river.

One of the district engineering problems involved in construction of the cloverleaf was relocating part of the Cuyahoga river, which formerly ran through the center of the site.

Five spans, each more than 100 feet long, comprise the largest bridge structure, which provides an overpass above the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks, the Cuyahoga river, the old Ohio canal and the paralleling Canal road.

The entire project embraces parts of four villages—Cuyahoga Heights, Valley View, Independence, and Garfield Heights.

Statistically, the project includes 83,160 square yards of brick and concrete pavement; 1,300,000 cubic yards of excavation and embankment; 13,000 tons of structural steel; 550 tons of reinforcing steel; 69,000 feet of piling and 11,000 cubic yards of concrete structures.

Three Firms Working

Portions of the contract were awarded to three construction firms at the letting July 22, 1938. Highway department engineers estimate that the actual construction cost will be $150,000 less than the original $1,700,000 estimate.

Theodore J. Kauer, young highway department engineer, is in charge of state supervision on the project. A native of Sandusky, Kauer was graduated from Ohio State university; served as assistant engineer of division 12 from 1932 to 1935, federal projects engineer for the state highway department 1935-38, and for two months in 1938 was division engineer of division 12.

There's no need to keep them in, either, for with long-wearing BALL-BAND Gaiters, Rubbers or Boots they'll be happy and their feet will be dry and warm.

Children like BALL-BAND Footwear because it is light and cut roomy so little folks can put it on or take it off alone with ease.

Theater Attractions

An excellent cast in a story of fast action and tense drama makes "Destry Rides Again," showing at the State tonight and Saturday, good film entertainment.

James Stewart and Marlene Dietrich form a new screen romantic team as the shy deputy sheriff and the barroom entertainer who falls in love with him. Irene Hervey as the girl he loves, Brian Donlevy as the gambling arch-enemy of the sheriff, and Charles Winniger as the drunken sheriff who suddenly reforms are seen in the supporting cast. Una Merkle, Mischa Auer, and Little Dickie Moore (who is the voice of Pinocchio in Disney's cartoon feature) also are members of the cast.

When a gambler boss of a frontier town and his leading entertainer fleece a cattleman out of his ranch so they can exact tribute from other cattlemen who drive their herds over it, the sheriff is killed and the gambler appoints the town drunk as sheriff.

Surprisingly the new sheriff reforms and imports a young westerner to clean the town up. The deputy faces not only the lawless element in the town but the honest law-abiding people as well, due to a trick of the gambler's in forcing the deputy to uphold the gambler's claim. Only the efforts of the barroom entertainer bring his campaign to a successful end.

At the Grand tonight is Johnny Mack Brown in "Chip of the Flying U."

Theater Attractions

An excellent cast in a story of fast action and tense drama makes "Destiny Rides Again," showing at the State tonight and Saturday, good film entertainment.

James Stewart and Marlene Dietrich form a new screen romantic team as the shy deputy sheriff and the barroom entertainer who falls in love with him. Irene Hervey as the girl he loves, Brian Donlevy as the gambling arch-enemy of the sheriff, and Charles Winniker as the drunken sheriff who suddenly reforms are seen in the supporting cast. Una Merkle, Mischa Auer, and Little Dickie Moore (who is the voice of Pinocchio in Disney's cartoon feature) also are members of the cast.

When a gambler boss of a frontier town and his leading entertainer flee a cattleman out of his ranch so they can exact tribute from other cattlemen who drive their herds over it, the sheriff is killed and the gambler appoints the town drunk as sheriff.

Surprisingly the new sheriff reforms and imports a young westerner to clean the town up. The deputy faces not only the lawless element in the town but the honest law-abiding people as well, due to a trick of the gambler's in forcing the deputy to uphold the gambler's claim. Only the efforts of the barroom entertainer bring his campaign to a successful end.

one of science's greatest mysteries.
The instrument will be of new design with a 36-inch mirror and strument in Ohio.

Finance Association Adopts Plan of Ads.
Believing that advertising never should be false, deceptive, or misleading and believing further that absolute fairness and candor should characterize all advertising, the Ohio Association of Personal Finance Companies has just adopted a set of rules and regulations governing the method and manner of advertising in the small loan industry. It is hoped that these regulations will be used by all licensed small loan companies as standards in guiding the preparation of advertising copy and in this way raise the level of ethics in the industry.
To put these regulations into effect, a committee on advertising ethics has been appointed. This committee will consider complaints from the public and members of the industry and make necessary recommendations to bring the advertising into conformity with the standards adopted by the industry.
To insure fair and impartial treatment of all complaints and to keep the public point in view in the foreground, the association has asked Professors T. M. Beckman and H. H. Maynard to serve on the committee. Those two men are nationally known authorities in credit and advertising and have consented to serve on the committee in the hope of contributing to the better understanding and management of the personal finance business. Other members of the committee are Leon J. Ingram,

MOLINE, Ill., Jan. 12.—Ten-inch ice and some dexterous piloting saved five passengers and a crew of three from possible death early today when a United Air Lines plane made a forced landing on a narrow stretch of the Rock river.
The plane, with one of its two motors disabled, slid across the ice and smashed into a concrete retaining wall on the river bank.
Four passengers and the two pilots sustained only minor injuries.
The 14-passenger sleeper, enroute from New York to San Francisco, developed motor trouble about midnight while near Iowa City, Ia.

Year-End Declines
Hit Steel Industry
YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 12.—Year-end declines in steel buying are causing sharp recessions in steel operations, although steel makers still are optimistic.
Next week, the district's steel operating rate will be about 74 per cent of capacity, down about 11 points from last week, with eight fewer active open hearths, a reduction in Bessemer output, and two fewer blast furnaces active.
This leaves 57 of the district's 83 open hearths, three Bessemer, and 20 of the 25 blast furnaces in production.

W. Virginia Area Is Hit By Drouth
WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 12. —
Ohio county's farm bureau reports the entire northern panhandle of West Virginia suffering from the wors, drouth in 15 years.
Hundreds of wells and cisterns
in rural sections have gone dry.
Farmers are hauling water from the Ohio river to keep their dairy herds and other stock alive.
The scarcity of water is attributed to the summer-long drouth and failure of snow now on the ground

Defends Governor In Democratic Fire

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Ohio's Republican delegation in the house found a strong ally today in defending Gov. John W. Bricker's re-election policy against New Deal onslaughts.

Representative Schafer, Wisconsin Republican, accused the Roosevelt administration yesterday of trying to "smear" the Ohio Republican chief executive. Several New Dealers have charged the governor with failing to care for Ohio relief clients properly. Bricker contended that the New Deal played politics with relief funds.

Schafer asserted on the house floor that he thought the "New Deal crowd" is more interested in smearing the governor, not with a view of the past election, but the 1940 election. They no doubt have sought from the reaction throughout the country that the governor of Ohio was a strong potential "dark horse" candidate for the presidency in 1940.

Bricker has said he intended to run for re-election and that he would support Sen. Robert A. Taft, an avowed presidential candidate.

Stubborn Truck

SCOTT'S BLUFF, Neb.—Farmer Sam Slacker made a bid for fame similar to that won by the legendary man who built a fire under his recalcitrant mule. Slacker built a fire under his truck's cold motor. The mule, so the legend does, burst into action. Slacker's truck, however, burst into flames. Try the classifieds — a gold mine of value.

Explorer Reports Driving Off Lions With Sling-Shot

Hassoldt Davis Relates Interesting Experiences On Return From Far East

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—For every thing there is to be or do in this world, you might expect some adventurous man or woman already has claimed first honors. But then you wouldn't have reckoned on Hassoldt Davis, who is back in America boasting that he is the first person who ever drove off hungry jungle lions by popping them in the flanks with a sling-shot. Davis, author and adventurer, had many other exciting experiences with a picture making expedition headed by the Belgian explorer, Armand Denis, and his American wife, Leila Roosevelt, a cousin of the Theodore Roosevelt family.

Travel Burma Road
They traveled half-way up the Burma-Yunnan highway into southern China, which cable dispatches say is the route by which the Chinese are getting a large proportion of their arms and munitions to fight Japan. They covered only half the distance — 1,000 miles — with a convoy of 90 munition trucks whose drivers "were underfed, underpaid and crazy with opium." "We had to turn back with our three cars because of monsoon rains which washed out bridges and carried many of the trucks over 1,000 foot cliffs," said Davis. "I doubt whether those arms ever got to Yunnan." In Calcutta the party got a special permit from the maharajah of Nepal to enter that forbidden country in the Himalayan foothills. "The only way we could enter was on a narrow trail over two 8,000 foot mountain passes, carried in sedan chairs by natives," he said. "We saw 75 natives carrying a new motor car over the trail for the maharajah, who already owns about 60 cars. The only place they can be used is on a road just 12 miles long." They were there for an annual festival when "every one of 10,000 officers in the army had to kill an ox as a sacrifice." "Streets ran with blood and we had to kick carcasses aside to get through the temples," he said. "But it's one time of the year when the poor people get plenty of meat to eat." In Central Africa The expedition then went to Tanganyika in central Africa where

SMART STYLE "BACKS" FASHION Pattern 4369

Have you ever had a "good time" dress? A frock that works like a charm to make you belle of any occasion? Anne Adams' Pattern 4369 will be your good-luck dress for Spring. It's so irresistibly becoming with all its new-season notes! Fashion swings to the back in a low waistline that points to a spray of gathers in the skirt below. In front, a twin-peaked, broad girdle seems to waste away your waistline. A slim effect emphasized by soft draping throughout the bodice. The sleeves may be in three-quarter or long length too. This beautifully balanced frock would look well in flower-splashed crepe or sheer fabric. Pattern 4369 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric. Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER. "NOW IS THE TIME to prepare for Spring," says Anne Adams about her NEW SPRING PATTERN BOOK which is now ready for you to order. It's alive with attractive styles including a youth corner for tots, teens and twenties, evening-belle frocks, Spring bridal finery, carnival cottons and gay prints. You will even find balanced styles for scale-lipping matrons and charm shop suggestions for forty-plus's. The book is fifteen cents but when ordered with a pattern, which is also fifteen cents, the TWO TOGETHER ARE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS. Send your order to Salem News Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y.

"The trouble came when we wanted to quit and save the carcass for another trip — we didn't want to have to kill an antelope every time. But the lions wouldn't run away when we hunked the horn and even charged at them with the car. "Then I tried the sling-shot method. W.C.T.U. MEETING DATE CHANGED

Winona Group to Convene
In February with Mrs.
Wilson Steer

WINONA, Jan. 12.—The regular W. C. T. U. meeting Wednesday was postponed. It will be held in February with Mrs. Wilson Steer, Mrs. Donald Mayhew will be in charge of a "hold fast" meeting. Misses Margaret and Lura Livezy visited recently with their grandmother, Mrs. Rachel Gamble. W. C. Stoudt is suffering from an attack of quinsy. Mrs. Mary Whitacre and Mrs. Ida Stratton, who have been ill, are improved. Mrs. Robert Brantingham and son Jay of Warren are spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Cope, where Jay is suffering from a severe cold.

Back to College
Cameron Satterthwaite has returned to Wooster college after spending his vacation with his parents. Misses Florence and Bertha Sidwell returned to Wilmington college Sunday after spending the holidays at their home here. Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hall and son Lewis, and Mrs. Rachel Gamble were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Y. Gamble. Students attending boarding school at Barnesville, returned there Monday after spending the holidays with relatives and friends here.

C. W. Hall, Damascus rd. was a Sunday visitor at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Stanley and family. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Hall were Lisbon callers Monday. Mrs. Wesley Whippo of Rochester, Pa., is assisting in the care of her mother, Mrs. Adelaide Brandt, who is ill at her home.

Stubborn Truck
SCOTT'S BLUFF, Neb.—Farmer Sam Slacker made a bid for fame similar to that won by the legendary man who built a fire under his truck's cold motor.

Slacker built a fire under his truck's cold motor. The mule, so the legend does, burst into action. Slacker's truck, however, burst into flames.

Explorer Reports Driving Off Lions With Sling-Shot

Hassoldt Davis Relates Interesting Experiences On Return From Far East

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—For every thing there is to see or do in this world, you might expect some adventurous man or woman already has claimed first honors. But then you wouldn't have reckoned on Hassoldt Davis, who is back in America boasting that he is the first person who ever drove off hungry jungle lions by popping them in the flanks with a sling-shot.

Davis, author and adventurer, had many other exciting experiences with a picture making expedition headed by the Belgian explorer, Armand Denis, and his American wife, Leila Roosevelt, a cousin of the Theodore Roosevelt.

Travel Burma Road
They traveled half-way up the Burma-Yunnan highway into southern China, which cable dispatches say is the route by which the Chinese are getting a large proportion of their arms and munitions to fight Japan. They covered only half the distance, 1,000 miles—with a convey of 90 munitio trucks whose drivers "were underfed, underpaid and crazy with opium."

"We had to turn back with our three cars because of Monsoon rains which washed out bridges and carried many of the trucks over 1,000 foot cliffs," said Davis. "I doubt whether those arms ever got to Yunnan."

In Calcutta the party got a special permit from the maharajah of Nepal to enter that forbidden country in the Himalayan foothills. "The only way we could enter was on a narrow trail over two 8,000 foot mountain passes, carried in sedan chairs by natives," he said. "We saw 75 natives carrying a new motor car over the trail for the maharajah, who already owns about 60 cars. The only place they can be used is on a road just 12 miles long."

They were there for an annual festival when "every one of 10,000 officers in the army had to kill an ox as a sacrifice."

"Streets ran with blood and we had to kick carcasses aside to get through the temples," he said. "But it's one time of the year when the poor people get plenty of meat to eat."

In Central Africa
The expedition then went to Tanganyika in central Africa where literally mobbed the car — we photoed as many as nine at a time within ten feet of the camera.

"The trouble came when we wanted to quit and save the carcass for another trip—we didn't want to have to kill an antelope every time. But the lions wouldn't run away when we honked the horn and even charged at them with the car."

Pattern 4369

Have you ever had a "good time" dress? A frock that works like a charm to make you belle of any occasion? Anne Adams' Pattern 4369 will be your good-luck dress for Spring. It's a new-season notes! Fashion swings to the back in a low waistline that points to a spray of gathers in the skirt below. In front, a twin-peaked, broad girle seems to waste away your waistline. A slim effect emphasized by soft draping throughout the bodice. The sleeves may be in three-quarter or long length too. This beautifully balanced frock would look well in flower-splashed crepe or sheer fabric.

Pattern 4369 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

"NOW IS THE TIME to prepare for Spring," says Anne Adams about her NEW SPRING PATTERN BOOK which is now ready for you to order. It's alive with attractive styles including a youth corner for tots, teens and twenties, evening-belle frocks, Spring bridal finery, carnival cottons and gay prints. You will even find balanced styles for scale-sipping matrons and charm shop suggestions for forty-plus.

The book is fifteen cents but when ordered with a pattern, which is also fifteen cents, THE TWO TOGETHER ARE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Send your order to Salem News Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y.

SANITARY HANDS O.S.E.S. FIRST SET-BACK, 42-26

Salem High Passers Meet Second Youngstown Opponent In Game On Saturday

POSTS FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN OF 2ND ROUND

Sanitary Employs Tight Zone Defense to Stop O. S. E. S.

A smartly-manuevered National Sanitary quintet, combining a fast breaking offense with a tight zone defense, handed the previously undefeated Ohio State Employment Service passers their first set-back of the 1939-40 Class A league season, 42 to 26, at the Memorial building last night.

The victory boosted the Sanitary into sole possession of the lead in the Class A league's second round. The defeat was the first the O. S. E. S. has suffered in nine games. It was the Sanitary's fourth straight win of the second round and its seventh triumph in nine games to date.

Take Early Lead

Stopping the Employment Service team's usually potent offensive attack with their closely-knit zone defense, the Sanitary hoopers moved into the lead in the first quarter and continued out in front throughout the remainder of the game.

The Sanitary led 9 to 5 at the end of the first period, 21 to 14 at halftime and 36 to 19 at the close of the third quarter. The O. S. E. S. five, handicapped to some extent by the absence of one of its regulars, failed to threaten after falling ten points behind in the first half.

At Calios, Ed Jeffries and Frank Culler flashed brilliantly for the Sanitary on offense, while big Bob Jeffries starred on defense with his fine rebounding. Calios led the Sanitary scoring with 11 points.

Eddie Pukalski and Bill Cope paced the O. S. E. S., Pukalski counting 10 points and Cope nine.

Motors Win

The Altohouse Motors gained their second victory of the second round in the other Class A game, blasting Demings, 53 to 34.

The Motors had things all their own way in piling up a big lead in the first half and increasing their advantage in the second half. Sam Drakulich and Mike Spack shared scoring honors for the Altohouse team with the former counting 13 points and the latter 12.

The Young People's Catholic Club nosed out Rudibaugh's Sohioans in the lone Class B league game, posting a 32-to-29 victory.

After trailing throughout the first half, the Sohioans rallied to tie the score at 21-all in the third period. The Y. P. C. C. capped the decision in the fourth quarter by outscoring the Sohioans, 11 points to eight.

Larry Flani and Bill Smith tallied 19 of the Catholic Club's 32 points, while Schaffer paced the Sohioans with 14 markers.

CHICAGO GRID MENTOR GIVEN STANFORD JOB

Clark Shaughnessy Will Succeed Thornhill for Coast Team

PALO ALTO, Calif., Jan. 12.—The appointment of Clark D. Shaughnessy, 47, of Chicago, as football director for five years, was announced today by President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford University.

He succeeds Claude E. "Tiny" Thornhill, recently dismissed. Shaughnessy, with a ranking of professor in addition to head football coach at Chicago, was believed to have received $7,500 a year.

Trustees at Chicago decided last month to abolish football after a disastrous season.

Stanford failed to record a conference victory last year, losing six league encounters and gaining a tie with U. C. L. A. In a post-season game they defeated Dartmouth.

No Co-Operation, Tiny Says

Earlier this week Thornhill said he wished good luck for his then unnamed successor and expressed hope the new coach would have the co-operation Thornhill said he had "not enjoyed for several years."

Explaining his refusal to resign, Thornhill said "it was not the mistaken idea of trying to save my job but to give the university a chance to clean up some bad politics both on the inside and out. This done, I intended to resign."

Shaughnessy was recommended for the position by the university's board of athletic control. The names of many well-known football coaches were considered, but only one ballot was taken by board members and it was unanimous for Shaughnessy.

Born in St. Cloud, Minn., he received his degree from the University of Minnesota in 1914. A former great Gopher football end, Shaughnessy also won letters in basketball and track. His first coaching experience was as assistant football mentor at Minnesota.

At Tulane Decade

Between 1915 and 1925, Shaughnessy was director of athletics at Tulane university, and in 1925, developed a team which received the Rose Bowl invitation. Tulane, however, would not authorize acceptance of the Pasadena bid.

Shaughnessy went to the University of Loyola, New Orleans, in 1927, and in 1933, succeeded Amos Alonzo Stagg at Chicago. Stagg now is employed by College of the Pacific at Stockton, Cal.

The coach, his wife and their two daughters are expected to come to Palo Alto before April 1, when spring football practice starts at Stanford. His son, Clark, Jr., is attending U. C. L. A., and is one of the school's star javelin throwers.

Shaughnessy's coaching record:

Tulane	58	27	6
Loyola	38	16	2
Chicago	17	34	4

PAYCHEK ASKS TO MEET CONN

"Bring On Billy" Request Of Up and Coming Fighter

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 12. — Billy Conn's debut as a heavy-weight may have impressed many people but Johnny Paycheck wasn't among them.

Mentioned as a probable opponent of Conn, Paycheck knocked out Pietro Giorgio of Los Angeles in the fourth round Wednesday night and on the way back to his dressing room tersely commented:

"Bring on Billy Conn."

Conn, the Pittsburgh phantom-weight, has started on the road he hopes will lead to the heavyweight championship. But like the road to Tipperary, it's going to be a long and winding trail.

He has had two bouts with the big boys. Wednesday night he took an easy 12-round decision from Henry Cooper of Brooklyn in Madison Square Garden and last August he scored a technical knockout over Gus Dorazio in Philadelphia.

This success has made the light heavyweight champion and his handlers jubilant and the talk now in terms of Paycheck, Lee Savold, Bob Pastor — and leave the list hanging in mid-air so a listener can add on other steps right up the throne-room.

Will Fight Anybody

"He'll fight anybody, that kid," murmured Manager Johnny Ray in the dressing room after last night's fight. "I'm not the matchmaker, so I don't know who'll be next. Maybe we'll take the winner of that Apostoli-Bettina business, but he (Conn) wants those heavyweights. They can't touch him."

This was true against Cooper, who was called in on 1 days' notice to substitute for Steve Dudas and was no match for Conn. Everybody sensed it in advance and a crowd of only 5,658 was on hand, paying a gross gate of $14,400, the smallest take Conn ever has mustered at the Garden.

SANITARY HANDS O.S.E.S. FIRST SET-BACK, 42-26

Salem High Passers Meet Second Youngstown Opponent In Game On Saturday

POSTS FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN OF 2ND ROUND

Sanitary Employs Tight Zone Defense to Stop O. S. E. S.

A smartly-manuevered National Sanitary quintet, combining a fast breaking offense with a tight zone defense, handed the previously undefeated Ohio State Employment Service passers their first set-back of the 1939-40 Class A league season, 42 to 26, at the Memorial building last night.

The victory boosted the Sanitary into sole possession of the lead in the Class A league's second round race. The defeat was the first the O. S. E. S. has suffered in nine games. It was the Sanitary's fourth straight win of the second round and its seventh triumph in nine games to date.

Take Early Lead

Stopping the Employment Service team's usually potent offensive attack with their closely-knit zone defense, the Sanitary hoopers moved into the lead in the first quarter and continued out in front throughout the remainder of the game.

The Sanitary led 9 to 5 at the end of the first period, 21 to 14 at halftime and 36 to 19 at the close of the third quarter. The O. S. E. S. five, handicapped to some extent by the absence of one of its regulars, failed to threaten after falling seven points behind in the first half.

At Callos, Ed Jeffries and Frank Culler flashed brilliantly for the Sanitary on offense, while big Bob Jeffries starred on defense with his fine rebounding. Callos led the Sanitary scoring with 11 points.

Eddie Pukalski and Bill Cope paced the O. S. E. S. Pukalski counting 10 points and Cope nine.

Motors Win

The Altohouse Motors gained their second victory of the second round in the other Class A game, blasting Demings 53 to 34.

The Motors had things all their own way in piling up a big lead in the first half and increasing their advantage in the second half. Sammy Drakulich and Mike Spack shared scoring honors for the Altohouse team with the former counting 13 points and the latter 12.

The Young People's Catholic Club nosed out Rudbaugh's Sohloans in the lone Class B league game, posting a 32-to-29 victory.

After trailing throughout the first half, the Sohloans rallied to tie the score at 21-all in the third period. The Y. P. C. C. capped the decision in the fourth quarter by outscoring the Sohloans, 11 points to eight.

Larry Flani and Bill Smith tallied 19 of the Catholic Club's 32 points, while Schaffer paced the Sohloans with 14 markers.

PAYCHEK ASKS TO MEET CONN

"Bring On Billy" Request Of Up and Coming Fighter

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 12.—Billy Conn's debut as a heavy-weight may have impressed many people but Johnny Paychek wasn't among them.

Mentioned as a probable opponent of Conn, Paychek knocked out Pietro Georgi of Los Angeles in the fourth round Wednesday night and on the way back to his dressing room tersely commented:

"Bring on Billy Conn."

Conn, the Pittsburgh phantom-weight, has started on the road he hopes will lead to the heavyweight championship. But like the road to Tipperary, it's going to be a long and winding trail.

He has had two bouts with the big boys. Wednesday night he took an easy 12-round decision from Henry Cooper of Brooklyn in Madison Square Garden and last August he scored a technical knockout over Gus Dorazio in Philadelphia.

This success has made the light heavyweight champion and his handlers jubilant and the talk now in terms of Paychek, Lee Savold, Bob Pastor — and leave the list hanging in mid-air so a listener can add on other steps right up the throne-room.

Will Fight Anybody

"He'll fight anybody, that kid," murmured Manager Johnny Ray in the dressing room after last night's fight. I'm not the matchmaker, so I don't know who'll be next. Maybe we'll take the winner of that Apostoli-Bettina business, but he (Conn) wants those heavyweights. They can't touch him."

This was true against Cooper, who was called in on 1 days' notice to substitute for Steve Dudas and was no match for Conn. Everybody sensed it in advance and a crowd of only 5,558 was on hand, paying a gross gate of $14,400, the smallest take Conn ever has mustered at the Garden.

Coach Stated to Have
4-Year Contract

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 12.—The "Bill Kern to West Virginia" movement, started even before Kern gave up his football post at Carnegie Tech, looks like the definite thing, as time nears for the announcement as to who will be the new head man of Mountaineer football.

A report yesterday had Kern slated to take a four-year contract as the West Virginia coach with a salary of between $7,000 and $7,500 per annum. Another had Kern already lining up his assistants with the names of Eddie Hirschberg, Frank Kutz and Ray Carnely prominently mentioned.

Remains Silent
Kern, however, continued to remain a quiet silence about the whole matter. He would not say "yes" or "no" to the report that he was already signed, nor did he wish to comment about his new assistants, if any.

His only answer to all queries was: "I'm sorry, but there isn't anything I can say. Any announcement will have to be made directly from West Virginia."

All reports also drew a "no comment" answer from Mountaineer athletic authorities in West Virginia.

Another report had Mike Nicklick, former Pitt halfback star, resigning his position as backfield coach at his alma mater, and ready to take a job as assistant to Kern at West Virginia.

Publicity Director Frank Carver denied the report that Nicklick had resigned, saying: "Mike was in here yesterday talking with Coach Bowser, but I can say definitely he has not resigned, although I know he has been approached by at least one source."

Can't Book Games
Up from the comparatively quiet confines of the Bluff news came that the Dukes had given up hopes of scheduling the powerful Texas A&M for a game here this fall. The Aggies were seriously considering a game with the local school on Oct. 4 or 5, until someone pointed out to them that they are booked for a game in California with U. C. L. A. the following Saturday, and two successive long trips would be harmful to the boys on the squad. The Texans invited the Dukes to take the October date on their home grounds, but it is doubtful if the local school will accept.

A definite date for the game between Duquesne and St. Mary's of California this season was set for Sunday, Nov. 10, on the home field of the Galloping Gaels.

SALES TAX YIELD INCREASED IN '39

State Treasurer Issues
Report On Income
From Taxes

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12.—Ohio's three per cent retail sales tax last year yielded $26,504,000, an increase of $6,450,100 or 16 per cent over 1938, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

Taxes on beer provided $9,070,700, a gain of $708,490; the cigarette levy returned $7,667,700, an increase of $668,794, and revenue from the wine tax totaled $950,800, or 1307.100 more than 1938.

Income from the malt tax, however, dropped to $26,000, a decrease of $5,790.

Treasurer Ebright reported that every county, except three, listed increases in sales tax revenue ranging from 3.3 per cent in Morgan to 34 per cent in Trumbull. The three experiencing decreases where Holmes .48 per cent, Noble .11, and Washington .95.

Heaviest Collections

Cuyahoga county reported the heaviest collections, approximately $9,859,000, a gain of 16.6 per cent. Other counties with a large sales tax revenue and the percentage of increase were:

Hamilton $5,058,000, or 8.7 per cent; Franklin $3,817,100, or 15.2; Lucas $2,897,000 or 23; Summit $2,521,200 or 29.7; Montgomery $2,422,800 or 19.9; Mahoning $1,626,817 or 26.8, and Stark $1,572,800 or 22.7.

Improved business and the new sales tax stamp redemption law received credit for the increase in revenue.

Sales tax collections increased 47.7 per cent on motor vehicles, 25.6 on home furnishings, 15 per cent on men's and women's clothing, 38.3 per cent on garage business, 64.4 per cent on chain store mail order business, and 11 per cent on chain store groceries and meats.

The treasurer's office in 1939 paid $126,694 to civic, benevolent, charitable and religious organizations in redemption of cancelled sales tax stamps at 3 per cent of their face value.

"LOVE'S INTERLUDE" by -MAY-CHRISTIE

The check was put through. The clerk knew her. She drew the full amount in bills. Who knew, she might need them all before the day was at a close? Then down to Wall Street, in a taxicab. She wouldn't trust the subway. In one compartment of her bag was the envelope for Tarry containing the five hundred dollars. Six hundred dollars in another, for her father. She clung tightly onto that handbag.

Tarry was pathetically grateful, and also obviously ashamed, when she added a fifty dollar bill to the original amount, surmising he had speculated with his client's money because his pleasure-loving soul had run him into debt.

"I heard you were at the El Martini a time or two," she contrived to say, in an offhand manner, to save his young pride, "a dollar a drink can run you into plenty. Maybe this'll help out."

"I swear I'll pay you back every nickel," she wondered how? But refrained from moralizing. Where was the good?

With a hand no longer shaking—for the cash was safely in his pocket—he wrote her an I. O. U. Told her she was an angel.

Her thoughts flew to the El Martini. The long room in azure and white—stars twinkling on the deep blue ceiling—along the walls the gold leaf palms.

Chinchillas... sables... ermines... diamonds... emeralds.

Exotic women... glittering names galore.

She'd met Randall in that club. Had not liked him in the beginning. But compared to Tarry, to Rodney Stone, had he not proved himself a truer friend than those two who had so fascinated her for a time?

The thought of Rodney at this moment was a horrible ache.

Ironically, it was his father-in-law-to-be who had saved the situation for poor Tarry. But don't let Tarry know about the source of the money, for by the terms of the letter accompanying the check she was tacitly tied. She must abide by that, cost what it may.

Tarry was probably thinking that the money came from Randall at his own suggestion. Didn't care what kind of strings were attached!

Thinking this, and watching Tarry wolf a second breakfast (the shadow of jail definitely removed), she told herself that men were cheats and hypocrites and liars, interested in nothing but food, drink and the sport of love-making. Their passion for money meant just that! Cash for self-indulgence!

Why not meet them on their own ground? Why not indulge herself a little with the remnant of the check she had fairly earned?

It was a sparkling morning. The sunbeams showed the shabbiness of her old coat.

An hour and a half left till her Boton-going train at noon. She had money in her purse. Why not look the part?

Would Rodney Stone have turned from her to Ruth, if she'd had the wits—and cash—to be sardonically smart?

He had liked her. Admired her. Even loved her. There had been that unforgettable moment on the boat. To illustrate her point, she remembered the gorgeous hired gown!

Tarry dropped her off at the department store where she had seen that coat in the window yesterday—deep burgundy duvety swathed in flattering blue fox.

Seventy-nine-fifty. "Reduced from one hundred and ten dollars, madam. It was made for you. You look a dream."

And she did. The high roll collar framing the pale beauty of her face, her slender neck that was like the stem of a flower. Tight-fitted bodice pinched at the waist accentuating her slenderness. Swirling skirts, fur-edged, making her look like an illustration from Vogue!

It does things for you, madam. The gentlemen would admire you in it. Your sweetheart? Or a husband, perhaps?

"I've neither the one nor the other," said Moira tartly. Then her naturally pretty mouth relaxed into a smile. There were plenty men in the world who would admire her. Life was far from over. She'd put Dr. Stone out of her mind. She'd given Ruth to him. She wasn't going to sacrifice all gaiety, all happiness, because one man out of a million had failed.

She paid for the coat. Took it over her arm. There was a shoe sale in the basement. Beautiful suede pumps, the color of her coat, at two-ninety-five.

To the glove counter. Chamois pullions that matched the fur. A hand-bag—roomy envelope type—on the same tone.

Quick dash to her apartment. Out of her working dress and into the burgundy velvet purchased previously to wear at the hospital bazaar. Thanks to Amanda, she had worn it in the kitchen. Nor was it any more suitable for the train.

But she must look lovely for her father—opulent, for her own spirit. The new wine velvet hat, bought with the dress, with its tiny, off-the-face brim, completed the ensemble.

A picture of dainty beauty stepped into the taxi she had phoned for. A transformed girl. Looking at her, her father would make no bones about accepting the money needed for the mortgage interest. He would see her as successful. Working-girl-makes-good-in-big city!

Grand Central as fast as you can make it," Moira told the driver. It was a wild, exhilarating ride. No time to buy her Pullman ticket. She dropped breathlessly into a deep-draped chair in the club car.

Men on all sides. Already ordering pre-luncheon highballs, cocktails and aperitifs. She'd been right in sizing up their interest in food, drinking and love-making as predominating. Already there were vulgarly speaking, glad-eyes galore.

She bought her ticket, a magazine, some cigarettes, and leaned back, luxuriating in this brief change in the usual routine. Houses flew past. Her magazine slipped to the floor.

The man in the next seat grabbed it as she swooped for it. Their heads bumped. Swift apology from him. "No matter. The train swings so on the curves." She gave him a smile.

He was long, lean, aristocratic-looking. With a nice face. "Fortyish," she decided. And with money. Blessed money. Surely a high-priced English tailor had cut those gray tweeds. And she had glimpsed his gold cigarette case.

He saw a slim dark girl with a sensitive mouth and quite beautiful eyes. Smartly dressed, with pretty feet and ankles. It was the ankles he had—and agreeably—seen first.

A boring journey of six hours—that's to say, if he didn't talk to her—lay ahead.

"Boston bound. I take it?" He thought she had a Bostonian air.

"No, Madison."

"I too. You live there?"

"Used to. New York's my abode, these days."

"Then that's our second point in common."

She thought: "Evelyn would call him a quick worker. But there was nothing forward or impertinent about him. Different from Evelyn's kind of man. He had a well-bred manner."

"Would you care to look at a paper?" Wasn't going to force himself on her. He had two papers. She declined.

"Nothing but murders, violence, kidnappings and what-have-you," she responded shrewdly.

"You're right." He was amused, a little intrigued. "I only read the financial sections, skim the headlines."

The financial sections? She'd been correct in summing him up, then. Money.

They were chatting, presently. An attendant passed through the club car, bawling: "First call for lunch. Dining car rear."

"Hungry?"

She said: "Not yet. But don't let me detain you."

"Oh, I breakfasted late." The car emptied.

"The American man and his food." She looked cynical, faintly amused.

How young she was, he thought. Wanted to seem experienced. Or was she?

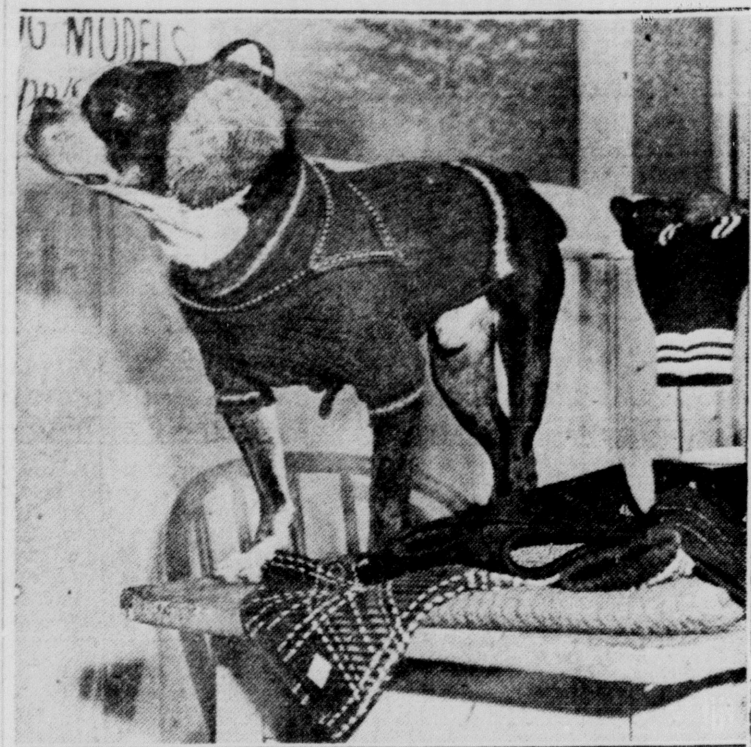

"You've been abroad, I take it?" She only hesitated for a moment, then said coolly, watching her effect: "I was educated in Europe."

Why should girls like Amanda and Ruth have all the privileges, the background? She'd create one for herself, out of her own mind.

"School in Paris?"

"Naturally Lausanne first. I adored the winter sports. D'you ski?"

Why should girls like Amanda and Ruth have all the privileges, the background? She'd create one for herself, out of her own mind.

"School in Paris?"

"Naturally. Lausanne first. I adored the winter sports. D'you ski?"

"Once upon a time. Christmas at St. Mortiz. Bob-sleighing. The Cresta Run. You know it, of course?"

She was astonished to hear herself say glibly: "I've been down it. It was frightfully exhilarating."

"And dangerous." Was he looking at her quizzically? She remembered, uncomfortably, reading something about women being barred from the Cresta Run. He'd probably know that.

"Fascinating things are usually dangerous." She shook out a little nervous laugh.

He ventured: "You carry no sign." Gave her another odd glance.

"How do you mean?"

"No red light visible!"

"A left-handed compliment?" She ought to snub him. But it was her own fault. She'd given him the lead. Inadvertently.

"Not at all." His eyes were amused. "Meant with the right hand too, not forgetting the eyes and ears. But your life must be a long sweet song of compliments. If I sound too bold, forgive me."

"Practiced, you mean?" Let him see she was no fool. But it was miraculous how quickly her new smart outfit was getting results.

There was the psychological angle, as well. Self-assurance came to one when one was beautifully garbed and groomed. To be fully in command of oneself was half life's battle.

When he offered her a cocktail, after they'd chatted further, she accepted airily, for wasn't it in the spirit of the new, dashing Moira who today had been born?

Money! Money had done this! For the sake of other people, she had put through the big check that had at first shocked her, but now it seemed perfectly right and fitting that she, too, should get some benefit.

Sipping her cocktail—a daiquiri in its amusing iced pagoda—smoking a Turkish cigarette that had come out of his gold case, she felt worldly, sophisticated.

She let her imagination carry her away. What if she did fib? Talk airily of Europe and its capitals? She'd read enough. It was really a kind of game. Stimulating the wits. Soothing the soul that had had too many hurts, these days. (To be continued)
